I think it is time for the government to leave Microsoft alone. Why not go after the drug manufacturers and their deals made with insurance companies. The under the counter deals are not in the best interest of the consumers and should be covered by anti trust laws. Microsoft is o.k. and even though I do not use their internet services, they continue to give me excellent service. I agree with Ted Kennedy when he said the case against Microsoft sounded like "sour apples".I will continue to use the products of Microsoft even if they are more expensive because their products are more user friendly. Thank you, Carolyn Hinton
